trained on normal windows only; the small code pushes it to learn typical patterns anomaly score = mean squared difference between window and reconstruction